Natančno preberi ta navodila.

Prilepí kodo oziroma vpiši svojo šifro v okvirček desno zgoraj na tej strani.

Natančno preberi navodilo posamezne naloge. Najprej poslušaj govorjeni besedili in reši nalogi slušnega razumevanja. Nato reši še preostale naloge v preizkušu.

Pri vsaki nalogi svoj odgovor napiši v predvideni prostor znotraj okvirja oziroma razpredelnice.

Piši čitljivo. Če se zmotiš, napačni odgovor prečrtaj in pravilnega napiši na novo.

Nečitljivi zapisi in nejasni popravki se ovrednotijo z nič točkami.

Če se ti zdi naloga pretežka, se ne zadržuj predolgo pri njej, temveč začni reševati naslednjo. K nerešeni nalogi se vrni pozneje.

Na koncu svoje odgovore ponovno preveri.

Zaupaj vase in v svoje zmožnosti. Želimo ti veliko uspeha.

CALIFORNIA TREKKING

The Lost Coast Trail stretches along California's beautiful rough coastline and follows some of its most isolated and breath-taking beaches. It is accessible all year around. The coastline is so rough that road workers were unable to continue the well-known Highway 1 along this stretch of California. Instead, the highway was continued inland.

The entire hike from the starting point to the other end is about 40 km long and it stretches along dark sandy and pebble beaches. You will have to plan your hiking time accordingly in order to avoid high tide where parts of the trail will be completely impossible to cross at certain times of the day. All visitors camping overnight must have a permit. The trail takes about 2 to 3 days to complete, depending on your level of physical fitness, but there are plenty of excellent spots to camp at along the way.

Pro Tip: Unless you have an off-road vehicle, make sure to plan ahead and book a shuttle to drive you to your starting point on the trail. Also, consider the pebbled beach parts and bring some comfortable in-soles for your hiking boots.

Some visitors to Santa Catalina island decide to go on the Trans Catalina Trail. The island as well as the route are popular in all seasons. Hikers usually start their hike in Avalon ending it at Two Harbors and camp at the many established campgrounds along the trail. You do not need any permits but campsite reservations are required.

Don't be fooled into thinking this trail will be easy. Most hikers opt for a 3 to 5-day backpacking adventure.

The Trans Catalina trail is rocky and tough. At over 61 km long, it also has about 2.5 km of total elevation gain. Many parts of the trail are steep, and there is little-to-no shade along the entire length of the trail. However, after all that hard work, you can wait for the ferry back to the continent in style, sipping a cold beverage and having some food at one of the island's best local restaurants in Two Harbors.

Pro Tip: Wear moisture absorbent hiking clothes with long sleeves to protect yourself from the sun on this trail, and consider bringing hiking poles with you as portions of this trail can be very steep.

Yosemite Half Dome lies within the Yosemite National Park, which is one of the most beautiful national parks in the US. It's an essential stop if you're doing a California road trip. This round trip track is about 22 km long.

Half Dome stands tall in the valley as its most iconic feature. If you plan to hike up the steep granite slopes via the supportable cables toward Half Dome's peak, you have to get a permit first. These are very difficult to obtain so plan well ahead. Hikers come from all across the world. Upon reaching the top of Half Dome, you will be rewarded with epic 360-degree views of Yosemite Valley. This is an accomplishment to be celebrated! From June to October, when the entire trail is accessible, many people do this hike in a day. During this time, you can also opt for a two-day backpacking trip and camp at Little Yosemite Valley. Either way, it's a beautiful and challenging hike, one of the absolute best in California.

Pro Tip: If sharing the hike up the cables intimidates you, plan to start your hike very early so you can try to avoid the crowds. Also, be sure to bring protection to prevent palm injuries when climbing up the cables to the summit!

THE BIRTHPLACE OF COFFEE

Almost everyone likes coffee, whether it's black or mixed into a latte or cappuccino, but where do those aromatic little black beans come from? You can actually thank Ethiopia for 0 and the flavourful, stimulating brew that comes from them!

Legend has it that coffee beans were originally discovered by a goat herder in AD 850, when his goats seemed unusually 1 that grew near their pasture. The goat herder also tried them and immediately felt more energetic and happy. He took them to the monks in a nearby monastery, thinking they were miraculous, but the monks threw the berries into the fire, claiming they were evil. When the wonderful smell of roasting coffee beans filled the entire monastery, the monks swept them out of the fire and 2, accidentally creating a new and wonderful drink that helped the monks stay awake during long nights of meditation.

Today we know that the miraculous ingredient in coffee beans is caffeine, a stimulant that helps people stay awake when they drink it. Coffee, which is named after the Kaffa region of Ethiopia where coffee trees grow wild, quickly 3. Although coffee is now grown in many other parts of the world as well, Ethiopia is still known for producing the best coffee in the world.

Today, Ethiopia is Africa's major exporter of Arabica coffee beans. Arabica is known as the world's highest quality coffee and it's 4 used to make most of what the world drinks.

Arabica trees 5 about 3 to 4 years after being planted, and they can be picked for another 20 to 30 years. Most of the Arabica trees in the Kaffa province grow wild in the rolling hills and forests there. Coffee trees like Kaffa's climate, with temperatures of 16 to 24 degrees Celsius, shade from the midday sun, and plenty of moisture in the soil.

Coffee is big business in Ethiopia. More than 12 million people depend on this industry. The country produces 200,000 tons of coffee every year, 6. The rest is exported to countries such as Germany, Japan, the United States, and the Middle East. Coffee drinkers like Ethiopian coffee because of its unique flavour, 7, and some of the specially blended types are searched by sophisticated coffee drinkers all over the world.

ON THE FROG WATCH

There is nothing better (0) than frog watching on a spring evening. At first, you hear only the water rushing by, but then you hear "ribbit". Then another and another, until suddenly there is a whole orchestra of frogs.

Scientists think that many frog populations are decreasing. As they can't monitor them all, volunteers help them. Thousands of volunteers have collected data on more than 80 species (1) _____ 1998. Even though the program is called Frog Watch, what you really do is frog listening. Frogs are hard to see, but you can hear them very (2) _____ (easy) during their breeding season.

I live in California, so the three main frog species I listen for are the Pacific tree frog, the California red-legged frog, and the American bullfrog. They sound very different. One of them, the California red-legged frog, (3) _____ (list) as a threatened species in 1996.

In summer, my mom and I go frog watching. We record the time, air temperature, weather, wind speed, and the frog calls we hear on a data sheet. Our sheets are then sent (4) _____ the Association of Zoos and Aquariums. This association collects data from the volunteers across the country.

One night while we were out frog watching, we (5) _____ (find) an abandoned tub filled with tadpoles. We didn't touch nor disturb them, we just let them be. I hope next year, when each of them grows up, I (6) _____ (hear) them while frog watching. I'm really excited about that.

My name is Ben and I live with my family in Boxton. This town has a very long (0) t r a d i t i o n in football with two different football clubs, Boxton Town and Boxton Rovers. My family are all Boxton Town fans, but I

(1) s _____ Boxton Rovers.

No member of my family knows about my secret. It is very hard being different. It is not so bad most of the time, but I have to be very good at pretending, especially, when both teams are playing each other. I can't be sad when the other team scores and I can't cheer when my team wins. I have to go to another room and (2) c _____ the victory there.

I also have problems with keeping fan things where I want. I can only have my team's posters on my bedroom wall when I am alone. If someone knocks on my door, I have to be (3) q _____ and quiet to take the posters off the wall. I have a secret wardrobe to (4) h _____ my favourite team's clothes from my family.

Birthdays are terrible, too. I always get (5) g _____ s like scarves, caps, T-shirts connected to the wrong football team. I have to pretend I like them, but I don't.

Luckily my life will change. A billionaire from my town wants to buy both clubs and make one big team – Boxton United. I am so happy, I won't have to pretend anymore. I can relax and (6) e _____ all the matches with my family. Match nights will be much more pleasant this way.
